The purpose of the Church Match Grant program is to allow a church to help with the student's tuition expenses, with the University matching the church's gift up to $3,000. These should be funds that the church has control over, rather than gifts by a member to help a particular student. Gifts from parents and relatives are not eligible for the match.

The four questions on the other side of this form help us determine the eligibility of a gift.

Examples:

The church has a worthy student fund that members give to. The church board, or student aid committee, decided Mary Smith will be helped. This would be eligible for the match.

The church has a worthy student fund that members give to. A donor gives $500 to the fund, asking that John Smith receive assistance. This would not be eligible for the match.

The church board votes to take up an offering for Jane Smith. $700 is contributed from various members, including $200 from her grandparents. Only $500 would be eligible for the match.

Jerry Smith asks a wealthy church member to donate $2,000 to the church's worthy student fund, to be sent to his account at Walla Walla University. This would not be eligible for the match.

Cindy Smith's parents clean the church. Instead of paying wages, the church sends the equivalent amount to Walla Walla University for Cindy's account. This would not be eligible for the match.

An anonymous donor gives $500 to the worthy student fund, asking that the funds be given to Wendy Smith's account at Walla Walla University. This would not be eligible for the match.

David Smith attends a very small church. Mr. Jones is the main financial supporter of the church. He has helped several students over the years. Mr. Jones gives $2,000 to the worthy student fund. David is the only college-age student at the church. This would be eligible for the match.
